

FRANKSTON INDEPENDENT

Tuesday, November 24, 2009

frankstonindependent.com.au

Fairfax Community Network

Classifieds: 13 24 25

Price: 60¢ (incl GST)

Artists get into creative spirit

A GROUP of Koori artists is creating traditional indigenous blankets with a modern twist for an exhibition at Cube 37 in Frankston.

Part of Baluk Arts, a newly-formed arts organisation for indigenous artists from Frankston and the Mornington Peninsula, the artists are exploring their Aboriginal culture and connections by working together.

The murrup - or spirit - blankets are being made at textile workshops at the Koori Community Kitchen at Samuel Sherlock Hall in Frankston and at Chisholm TAFE's Rosebud campus.

Together with stencil works by Baluk Arts artists, the blankets will be shown at Cube 37 from Friday to Sunday this week.

Spirited approach: Koori artists at Chisholm TAFE College with panels for a spirit blanket.

Picture: Daryl Gordon

Inside

Blessing

Coast Guard volunteers receive their annual blessing at Frankston - page 16

Investigation

Fresh complaints over